

The listener supported programming provided by KLOVE is a great example of what radio should be. Great, uplifting and inspiring music. Radio personalities that are simply people, not entertainers grappling for a demographic. You can be confident that neither their conversation nor programming will be offensive in any way. I listen on the internet because their stations are not part of the northeast media network, which I find discouraging. The opportunity to listen to positive, uplifting radio broadcasts, I feel would have a dramatic impact on this area - especially considering the increase of roadrage and traffic in my area.
